Subject: Problems in Tallinn

Date: 18.05.2023

Introduction

Tallinn is suffering. The city has become a dangerous and lonely place. We need to address the problems plaguing our beloved city. Without further ado, here are the top three problems.

Homelessness

Homelessness in Tallinn is at an all time high with every other street being covered with tents and wooden huts. It is a problem because in the winter it is freezing. This problem could easily be solved with climate change. We heat up the world and it is no longer cold.

Crime

Muggings have risen by 382,6% percent since last year. There are many reasons. Firstly, a lot of people have lost their jobs due to AI. Secondly people are lazy. This problem could be solved with something similar to the New Deal in the forties. We could manually dig a canal through Tallinn to make public transport cheaper.

Loneliness

People in Tallinn are lonelier than ever. Although people have become degenerates, they suffer from lack of true friends that they could call whenever they need. This has led to a dramatic increase in public intoxications and drug overdoses. It has gotten especially bad in the younger generations.

Conclusion

Tallinn is rotting from the inside out. Although all problems have solutions. The political will required is not there. So the only solution is to let the city go down and rebuild it from its ashes.
